American Paper Money in Canada.

TURIOUS CASE EFFORE THE TORONTO POLICE COURT—A WOMAN CHARGED WITH HAVING COUNTERPEIT
AMERICAN MONEY—NORODY CAN TELL WHENTHER
THE BILLS ARE GENUINE—BEAUTIES OF THE AMERICAN PAPER CURRENCY.

From the forento Globe, Sept. 12.]

Mrs. Davidson was again placed at the bar on a charge of having counterfeit bills in her possession, without being able to give a satisfactory account of the manner in which she became possessed of them. The Gourt was crowded with spectators who appeared to take a lively interest in the proceedings. Mrs. Davidson had her veil down over her face as on the previous day, but when she became a httle excited while cross-examining some of the witnesses, she threw it back, and disclosed her features to the audence. The first witness was—

W. B. Phipps, broker, Toronto street, who said:—I never saw a genuine $1,000 till on the Bank of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; I have looked at the $1,000 bill now produced, and I must say that I would be very much afraid to take it from its general appearance. I do not think it genuine, but I am by no means positive about its being a bad bill; I have in this book in my hand (autographical counterfeit detector) a facsimile of the signature of the President of the Eank of Pittsburg, "John Grahmm," I have compared the signature on the bill with the fac-simile and there is a close resemblance between them; the signature is a good initiation of the incasimile, but still it is not perfect; according to the signature on the bill a Mr. Snyder seems to have been cashier, when it was issued, but as the detector is seven or eight years old the same name is not in the book; I perceive there is a difference in the turn of the "J" in "John" of the president's name in the book and on the bill.

The magistrate baving compared the signature, said:—

perceive there is a difference in the turn of the "J" in "John" of the president's name in the book and on the bill.

The magistrate having compared the signature, said:—They have a very close resemblance, but still they are not alike.

Examination resumed—On looking at the $100 bill on the Exchange Bank of Pittsburg my first impression would be if such a bill were presented to me for exchange that, from its general appearance, it was genuine; but as there are many counterfeits alloat on American banks, and as there are various ways of getting them up, I would, to make sure that it was all right, look into the detector to see what was said about the bill there; In reference to this bill now in my hand I have done so, and have the detector open at the place where the Exchange Bank is referred to, but I find that there is no reference to bills of $100; this I consider as another proof of its genuineness; I will now look at the fac-simile of the signature or the President in this autographical detector and compare the signatures; I have done so and find that the one on the bill is a close imitation of the fac-simile in the book; the fac-simile is written "Thes. M. Howe," "Thomas" being con-Macted; on the bill is written "T. M. Howe," but I have known presidents of banks write their own signatures in different ways so far as the letters of the name are concerned; the word "Howe" on the bill has a very close resemblance to the "Howe" in the book; the same observations apply to the $50 bill now shown me, as it is the same manufacture and issued by the same bank; the $10 on the Bank of Weston, Virginia, I consider to be a genuine bill; I wish to observe, however, that I am by so means a good judge of American money.

Harrison R Forbes—I am a member of the firm H. R. Forbes & Co., exchange brokers, King street; I have examined the bills produced; the $1,000 bill I should pronounce to be bad; the $100 and $50 bills I should also say are bad; the $10 bill is genuine. I exchanged a $50 bill for them; the bill I got from d

To Mr. Allen—I have been about a year in the brokerage business; counterfeits are often photographed; I cannot tell how counterfeits are made; I think I could tell a photograph counterfeit if I saw it; I cannot explaint the difference between a bill struck from the plate and one photographed; we often examine bills by feeling the paper; that is the way we know photograph counterfeit bills.

Mr. Allen—Could not a counterfeit bill and a genuine bill be printed on similar paper?

Witness-Yes.

dr. AllenJ be printed on similar paper:
Witness—Yes.

Mr. Allen—Do you know that on a bill printed from

L can detect con plate there is always an incrustration of lisk on the bill?

The Prisoner—That is quite correct. I can detect counterfeit bills, although I never passed any. Turning to the witness she said, "How did you know the $50 bill I gave you was good?"

Witness—It had the appearance of a good bill, and I took it.

The Prisoner—How do you know these bills are bad?

Witness—They have the appearance of bad bills, and look as if they were photographed.

The Prisoner—Who taught you to know bad bills from good ones?

Witness-Mr. Bull and others, and by looking over the soner—Did you find a description of the bill I in the detector, or did you look in the detector cription of it? =—No.

Witness—No.

The Prisoner—Then how did you know these bills were had or good? The detector says nothing about them being counterfeits. Looking at the magistrates she said, "Can mo person be brought here who knows something about American meney? Am I to be kept here in this manner from day to day? The bills are good, and could be proved good if any one was brought up who knew about American money. I have been badly used, and no lady would have been so used on the American side. I have been starved and my money all taken from me, and have only got one meal of victuals since I was sent down to that place (the gaol). Mr. Riley sent me that one meal. (The prisoner, it is said, will not accept the jail allow ance). I am willing to pay for my own food, and you can deduct it out of the money you have taken from me. The prisoner, who was very much excited, then resumed her seat, and the investigation was resumed.

James Broom—I am a clerk in Thomas & Arthur's dry goods store King street; the prisoner visited our sren too Monday, and asked to look at some shawls; I showed her everal; she looked at them and said she was a stranger, and would call again; she was only looking round; she selected a $10 shawl and put a mark on it, and said she would return next day; she called next day and told me to send the shawl to the Rossin House for "Mrs. Davis;" she then tendered me a $10 bill; Itold her I could not take it as it was American money, but if she was willing to lose the discount on it, I could get it changed; I money and the rest American; she has been several times in our store since.

The prisener—Will you allow me to speak one word?

The prisener—will you allow me to speak one word?

The Magistrate—Of course.

The prisoner—I wish to tell you, sir, that I have been badly used since I was taken up; I have no friends in this city to take part with me; I am starving, and have been ill for the last six monits, and have only come out of a doctor's care; It is too bad to use a poor woman in this manner, who is without a friend; the bills are good and the gold can be got for them.

The Magistrate—I ordered the constable to get breakfast for you this morning.

The prisoner—You must give me a $50 bill to live on; I cannot live without eating. Can this investigation be faished to-day? I do not want to go back to that place (the gool.)

(the gaol.)
The Magistrate—You will get all the good money that The Magistrate—You will get all the good money that belongs to you to use for your sustenance. We have no wish to use you ill, I can assure you of that.

John E. Ellis—I am a professional engraver in this city; I have examined the bills produced; they are all, in my opinion, impressions from the genuine plates; the $100 and $50 cannot be photographed, from the red tint on them; I cannot form any opinion of the genuineness of the signatures; the $1,000 bill is too sharp and black, in my opinion, to be a photograph.

W. Graves, an American, then made a statement relative to a transaction which he had with a $5 bill, which several brokers declared to be bad, but upon being tendered at the bank where it was issued it was declared to be genuine.

dered at the bank where it was issued it was declared to be genuine.

The Magistrate said he could not accept the statement, as it did not bear on the case.

Mr. Graves—I met with this lady's lawyer, and he asked me to come into court and tell it to you; I know nothing about this lady, and only came here out of curiosity when I saw an account of the case in the papers.

This being the last witness, the prisoner inquired if there were no American gentlemen in the city who could tell something about United States money. The names of some merchants, brokers and steambout agents were given to Mr. Allen, and subpomas were made out for their attendance.

some merchants, brokers and steamboat agents were given to Mr. Allen, and subponas were made out for their attendance.

The Magistrate—I must postpone the investigation till Monday. I cannot compel the attendance of the gentlemen who are to be summoned at a moment's warning.

The Prisoner—I am sick and have no money to get comfortable food with.

The Magistrate—I will give you some myself, and will write to the Governor of the jail to make you as comfortable as his arrangements will permit. Here are four dollars out of my own pocket, which you can pay when you are liberated.

The Prisoner—How can I do that if you say the bills are all counterfeits?

The Magistrate—The ten dollar bill is good; at least it is worth six dollars.

The Prisoner—Do not send me down to that den again. Can you not send me to a hotel till Monday? I will stay in my room, and an officer can watch me.

The Magistrate—I cannot do it.

The Prisoner (addressing a crowd of gentlemen who were standing near the bench)—If you, gentlemen, were in the United States you would not see a lady used in this manner. There they would subscribe to be her bail, and they would do all they could to get her sent to a hotel till this investigation was finished.

The magistrate intimated that he would take two responsible persons who would give security in $500 cach for her appearance.

The prisoner then accepted the $4 from his worship, appearance.

The prisoner then accepted the $4 from his worship, which she had before refused, stating that she would starve first before she used any money not her own.

She was then removed, and will be brought up again to day (Monday.)

No one having come forward during the afternoon or evening to enter ball for her appearance, she was again committed to jail.

The Excise Commissioners.

There was a meeting of the Board of Excise Commissioners yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas, present.
Commissioners Hackett and Holmes. The meeting was the first since the expiration of their summer recess After reading and approving the minutes of the meeting, the applications for licenses were examined. There were thirteen, of which twelve were grant ined. There were thirteen, of which twelve were granted, and one denied on account of some informality which was discovered in it.

They then adjourned till two o'clock this afterneon. The number of meetings which they have beld this year so far has been twenty-six, and they now intend to meet daily till the fifty meetings which the law requires them to hold shall have been held. The number of hearness granted at all their meetings this year is 228, and when the Commission expires they intend to hand over the names of those who sell liquor without heense to the Metropolitan police. Suits have been commenced against many liquor dealers recently, which has produced the effect of making others apply for licenses.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

The demand for money continues slack as compared with the supply. One large foreign exchange house ha been offering money on loan to-day at 5 per cent, while on the contrary, Belmont called in loans both to-day and yesterday. The rates for money remain much the same as yesterday, but there is rather more paper offer. ing. Strictly first class under four months dates passed readily at 7 per cent with the regular discount brokers readily. Capitalists still prefer to loan their money or call at low rates, rather than invest in any except strictly A 1. There are those, however, who think that there will be such a scarcity of first-class grades as to lead to an investment in second class. The banks are discounting

Our banks have voluntarily adopted the rule of keeping on hand in coin an amount equal to 20 per cent of their deposits. The banks of Louisiana are required by law to keep one-third. And it seems that this is the practical surrency and banking, that the authorities of the Bank of England endeavor to govern that institution so that the reserve of com and bullion shall amount to one-third of the demand liabilities of the bank. In the case of the seems to be about the same, or probably a little higher—say 36 per cent. For all ordinary purposes, however, it may be assumed that the leading idea of a reserve of one third govern both institutions.

Hence, when the coin and bullion range at a third of the liabilities, the minimum rate of interest for short business paper is about 4 per cent in London, and 4 ½ or business paper is account in the country and these are near the usual rates of interest for permanent loans on mortgage. In both institutions, when the coin and builion decline, the rate of interest is increased, the ratio being about the same as that governing the reserve, that is to say when the per cent of coin to demand liabilities falls one and half per cent, the rate of interest is increased about one-half of one per cent or one-third. For example, in the case of the Bank of England, when the specie reserve is at or above forty per cent, the rate of interest is two or interest was eight per cent, the reserve of coin had fallen to one-fourth of the demand liabilities. WEDNESDAY, Sept. 14, 1859.

have made a sorry time of it, and will have to father a heavier loss than they have done for a long time, as the large numbers in reserve renders the idea of withdrawing them preposterous, inasmuch as the loss would be in all probably still more ruinous. In view of these facts they were compelled to succumb though with a very poor grace, and let butchers name their own prices, which ranged from 6c. to 8c. for inferior to ordinary, and 8½ to 10c. for good to prime, with a fair demand only at the concession. There were on sale at the Washington drove yard 4,360 head, and at all the yards, including Bergen, 5,330 head.

The total receipts at all the yards for this week and last week were as follows:—

VEAL CALVES.

A good demand for extras has prevailed during the week, but the market is generally somewhat depressed, in consequence of the abundance of beef and consequent low rates at which it can be purchased. But few of the very best veal calves bring over 6c. per lb., and 6½c. may be considered an outside price. The inferior and common grades sell slowly at prices ranging from 3c. to 4½c., while the better kinds sell at from 5c. upwards. SHEEP AFD LAMBS.

The supply continued large, and the demand moderate for all grades except extras, which sell pretty freely at our outside quotations. A few sales have been effected for very extra fat sheep at $6.50, but sales at this price were so rare that we do not quote over $5 per head for first class sheep—lambs being scarcely so high. The bulk of the receipts during the past two weeks has consisted chiefly of inferior to common, and consequently the prices of good offerings have not been materially interfered with, though they must be considered nominal.
